Technical Data Sheet

What are Plastic Panel Shims?

Plastic Panel Shims or Plastic Packing Shims are used for leveling concrete precast panels, machinery, and transportable buildings. Plastic Packing Shims go by multiple names, including Construction Packers, Structural Packers, or Panel Packers.

Key Specifications

CONAC Plastic Shims are made from high-quality plastic. However, its use can be seen in other instances. For example, plastic shims are also used to level doors, large windows and glazing, machinery and portable buildings.

CONAC Plastic Shims possess high compressive strength since they are made from high impact plastic. Furthermore, our plastic shims comply with the Australian Standard: AS3850.1:2015 and are certified to a 20-tonne working load limit (WLL).

All CONAC Plastic Shims come with a non-skid surface with rib patterns, thereby increasing the coefficient of friction and preventing slippage while aligning panels. CONAC Plastic Shims are colour coded by the thickness and come in two different sizes: full size or half size. Therefore, size selection and identification becomes easy.
